Summary

As an educator and mentor, I apply my years of practice experience in non-profit, public health, and corporate settings to prepare the next generation of social workers. Specializing in connecting policy to practice at the micro, mezzo, or macro level, I integrate anti-oppressive frameworks into my teaching philosophy, empowering students to advance social justice and equity in their future endeavors as practitioners and leaders in the social work profession. I have been the market access leader of more than 30 pharmaceutical product launches, including two of the most successful products of all time. I built and led diverse teams that developed and implemented creative, patient-centered payer and access strategies. My passion is ensuring that patients receive the care and treatment they need for conditions associated with stigma and high public health impact.
